The Pastor Speaks

A Step In the Right Direction

Recently members of three labor unions voluntarily sacrificed pay raises in order to keep troubled companies alive. Workers in the Hamilton Watch Company plant at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, volunteered to take reduced wages from January 11 to May 29 in order to prevent the company from suffering a possible bankruptcy. The plant lost some military contracts.

In San Antonio Swift & Co. changed plans to close a meat packing plant when employees offered to take a 14% pay cut. This brought average wages down from $3.50 to $3.00 an hour.

In Florida members of the Teamster Union passed up a pay increase of seventy-five cents an hour due under a three-year contract. They were keeping alive a trucking firm, Overseas Transportation Co. and a subsidiary.

This is a step in the right direction. It's an unselfish spirit which ought to be imitated by management and by people in their personal relationships. In fact, it will require just such action as this to hold down inflation and to restore such a precious item as mutual trust.

Between individuals there are times when we ought to pass up demanding our contract rights from other people. There is a situation in which we ought not for once our place to insist, though it might be ours by right. Occassions arise when we ought not to be hyped over every issue even though we have a perfect right to do so. We may have a perfectly justified request to make of another person, but for his benefit we agree to pass up the request.

This is what Paul is talking about when he says in Philippians 2:4, "Lookout every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others." One mark of a Christian is that he will give up some demands when it is to the benefit of the other person. Notice that I said for the other person's benefit not merely for his. God wants us to seek the good, the welfare, and the advancement of another person more than we seek our own. The trouble is that no one is willing to be the bottom man on the totem pole, and we all thus become climbers who climb over one another and kick in the teeth of our friend in so doing.

God is pleased when we pass up some legitimate demands we can make on other people and demonstrate instead a spirit of complete helpfulness and trust. One reward you will find when you do this is that it will bring out the best in the other person. When you take one step toward helping another, you'll find that it will most often motivate him to take another toward you. You may be returned much more than you ever expected. Have you taken a step in the right direction lately?

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

TO BE A NEIGHBOR

Lesson for March 7, 1971

Background Scripture: Mark 12; 28-34; Luke 10:25-37
Devotional Reading: I John 4; 11-21

A family in our church was on the way by automobile to Florida. On a major highway in North Carolina their car broke down, stranding them "in the middle of nowhere."

The husband attempted to find what was wrong, but without avail. Cars whizzed by on either side and, although it was obvious that the family was in distress, no one stopped or even slowed down. After a considerable period of time had elapsed, a car slowed down and then stopped. Inside were two youths, long-haired and bearded! Could they be of help, they wanted to know?

Although this had hardly been the source of help the family had expected (and although they may have been just a bit apprehensive at the "hippie" appearance of these two young men), they explained their plight and accepted the youths' offer to tow them to the nearest town and repair garage.

Who Is My Neighbor?

This family was deeply impressed by this incident because they received help in time of need from two persons whom ordinarily they would not have thought of as the "neighborly type." This is the same factor which we find in Jesus' parable of the "Good Samaritan." What made that story so remarkable to his listeners is that "good" and "Samaritan" were two words no Jew would have thought of putting together. As you are probably aware, there was a deep, long-standing animosity between the Jews and the Samaritans and the latter were regarded almost as "untouchables." Jesus could not have picked a more despised person to serve as his illustration of the true neighbor.

The story comes into being because a lawyer (actually a scribe or specialist in the religious law, a theologian) asked the philosophical question: "And who is my neighbor?" What are the bounds of this love I am supposed to bestow upon others? The Pharisees, it is said, believed that the obligation of loving one's neighbor went no further than one's fellow Pharisees. Others believed that neighborliness was intended only for fellow Jews.

It appears that the man wanted to engage Jesus in a theological debate. Jesus, however, makes it clear that he too is concerned about theory and not enough about deeds. The Jews assumed that their teachings were theologically or doctrinally correct. The Samaritans, by comparison, were people who the Jews held to be heretics. Jesus in his story of what is really important is not a man's religious theories or doctrines, but his actions.

'Good Guys' And 'Bad Guys'

Compare the three people in the story. Two of these are religious professionals, the ones who would be expected to do the "right" thing. The other, a Samaritan, not only was not a professional but, as a Samaritan, a "wrong" believer. Yet, he did the loving thing, while the other two refused to get involved. The moral is clear: the loving heroic is more pleasing to God than the unloving person who is doctrinally or theologically sound. It is what we do, not what we say we believe, that is of greatest importance.

Secondly, Jesus is saying that any man, whether he be sinner or Samaritan, who needs our help is our neighbor. In other words, there are no limits to this love that God calls from us, there is no one to be excluded, no matter how unworthy they may seem.

Jesus finishes this story with a twist. He indicates that the real question is not "Who is my neighbor?" but . . . "To whom am I called to be a neighbor?"

Martin had six and Guill had five and Gretna got only six as the Raiderettes went to the dressing room at half time with a 19-15 lead.

Vepco Program Approved

Virginia Electric & Power Company's 1971 construction program approximating $871,854,000, highest in the company's history, has been approved by the company's board of directors.

T. Justin Moore, Jr., Vepco president, told the board that the record investment "will be absolutely essential to pay for construction to keep us ahead of the demands of the consumers for more electricity."

Most of the money needed in 1971 to meet consumer demands for energy, between $300 million and $320 million, will come from private investors, he said.

SR Edges Raiderettes For Championship

The Staunton River girls beat the Appomattox Raiderettes 29-23 last Friday night for the girls championship in the Seminole District at Lynchburg College. The win gave SR a 11-5 mark for the season and the lost left the Raiderettes as 15-2 overall and was the first setback in the district.

It was a nip and tuck first quarter as the Raiderettes came out on top 11-10 on the shooting of Cornelia Guill. Rickie Lantz was the big gun for SR in that quarter. The second quarter saw SR outscore the Raiderettes by one, 5-4, and at the half it was tied at 15-15.

In the second half the Staunton River defense just about stopped the Raiderettes cold. Appomattox got only to goal from the floor in the third quarter and fell behind 23-21 at the end of that quarter. The final quarter saw SR in a stall as they took only two shots from the floor and made one as their other points came from the foul line. Appomattox made only two foul shots in that quarter as SR ran the clock out and spent a lot of the quarter on the foul line as the Raiderettes kept fouling, in hope of getting the ball back.

Charlotte Holdren led SR with 11 points and Vickie Lantz had nine.

Cornelia Guill led Appomattox with 11 and Pat Ferguson trailed her with seven.

Staunton River hit about 40% from the floor and 11 of 19 free throws to a cold 20% for Appomattox and nine of 19 in free throws. The Staunton River girls held a slight edge in rebounds and the turnovers were about even.

Appo. JV's Beat WC JV's 61-55

The Appomattox JV's, down 8-0, came back strong in the first quarter and again in the third quarter to beat the William Campbell JV's 61-55 and the JV's Championship game at Lynchburg College.

William Campbell got off to an 8-0 lead in the first quarter before the Appomattox JV's got on the board with 4:36 left in the quarter. The Appomattox JV's led 14-12 at the end of the quarter. WC rallied in the second quarter for a 25-24 halftime lead as they outscored the Baby Raiders 13-10.

It was all Mark Eggleston in the third quarter as Appomattox outscored WC 16-7 and didn't allow the Baby Generals a field goal in that quarter. Eggleston hit a basket with 4:35 left in that quarter to give Appomattox a 31-29 lead and then he came back seconds later to hit two free throws to make it 33-29 and they never trailed after that. He had seven points in that quarter. In the final quarter Bobby Layne and Cleveland Fleshman combined for 15 of the Appomattox 21 points to keep pace with a WC rally that saw them put 23 points on the board.

Al Davis took game honors with 16, and Barry Caldwell and Barry Riddlebarger had 13 and 10 each.

Nelson Edges Appo. In JV Championship

Nelson got off to a lead of 10-6 in the first quarter as the Baby Raiders had trouble finding the range. They came back in the second quarter to outscore Appomattox 19-12 for a 29-13 lead at the half. The Baby Raiders hit only four field goals on 29 attempts in the first half and only five of 17 free throws. In the same half Nelson hit 10 of 28 shots and nine of 13 free throws.

In the third quarter Appomattox got a 17 point performance from Cleveland Fleshman as they had a 27 point quarter to 14 for Nelson and came within three points 43-40. Appomattox got the lead in the fourth quarter and led by as much as four points, but Nelson, behind the shooting of Al Campbell kept coming back. He had nine points in that quarter. Appomattox outscored Nelson 20-19 but the drive fell short as several key shots were missed in the last minute.

Nelson shot a red - hot 42% from the floor to a poor 34% for Appomattox, Appomattox hit about 50% the second half, but a poor first half proved to be the difference.

The Baby Raiders controlled the board and the turnovers were pretty even.

Cleveland Fleshman led all scorers with 23 points for the Appomattox JV's. He was followed by Kenneth Gafford with 16 and Bobby Layne with 11.
